Description: CME crews precisely reinstall a 25,000 pound hydraulic cylinder and ram replacing the damaged system they removed earlier. The ram is used as part of the closing mechanism for the dump scow and is critical to its operation. Working with the customer to schedule the repair between cycles, having everything in place when the vessel arrived and quickly making the swap put the G.L. 502 back in service with time to spare.

Location: CME Terminal Elizabeth, NJ

Customer: Great Lakes Dredge & Dock

Comments: Construction and Marine Equipment is always ready to work with your particular needs and schedule. Like you, we appreciate a good plan when it all comes together. We take pride in being part of your team that makes it all happen the first time.
